Item 8.01. Other Events.

On November 7, 2007, Morgan Stanley (the "Company") issued a press release announcing significant declines since August 31, 2007 in the fair value of its U.S. subprime related exposures as a result of the continued deterioration in the market and other market developments. As of August 31, 2007, the Company had $12.3 billion in U.S. subprime related balance sheet exposures representing $10.4 billion in net exposures. Net exposure as of October 31, 2007 was $6.0 billion. Net exposures are defined as potential loss to the Company in a 100 percent loss default scenario, with zero recovery. As a result of the decline in the fair value of these exposures, the Company has determined that the reduction in revenues for the two months ended October 31, 2007 attributable to the decline was $3.7 billion (representing a decline of approximately $2.5 billion in net income on an after-tax basis). The impact on the Company's fourth quarter financial results from changes in the fair value of these exposures will depend on future market developments and could differ materially from the amounts noted. It is expected that market conditions will continue to evolve, and that the fair value of these exposures will frequently change and could further deteriorate.

A copy of the press release is being filed as Exhibit 99 to this Current Report on Form 8-K and is incorporated herein by reference in its entirety.

Morgan Stanley

For Immediate Release

Provides Information Regarding Subprime Exposure

Continued Market Deterioration Since August Reduces Fair Value of Firm's Subprime Exposure by $3.7 Billion – as of October 31, 2007

NEW YORK, November 7, 2007 – Morgan Stanley (NYSE: MS) today provided additional information about the Firm's U.S. subprime related exposures, which have declined in value as a result of continued market deterioration since August 2007.

At the end of Morgan Stanley's fiscal third quarter on August 31, 2007, the Firm had $12.3 billion in U.S. subprime related balance sheet exposures representing $10.4 billion in net exposures, as indicated in the attached table. Net exposure as of October 31, 2007 is $6.0 billion. Net exposures are defined as potential loss to the firm in a 100 percent loss default scenario, with zero recovery.

Since that time, the fair value of these exposures has declined as a result of the continued deterioration in market data, as reflected by the sharp decline in the ABX Indices, and other market developments, including updates to mortgage remittance data and cumulative loss forecasts. The declines in value are outlined in the attached table as of August 31, 2007 and October 31, 2007.

As a result of these declines in value, Morgan Stanley's revenues for the two months ended October 31, 2007, were reduced by $3.7 billion (representing a decline of approximately $2.5 billion in net income on an after-tax basis). The actual impact on the Firm's fourth quarter financial results, which will include results for the month of November, will depend on future market developments and could differ from the amounts noted.

While these writedowns will negatively impact the fourth quarter results in the Firm's fixed income business, Morgan Stanley expects to deliver solid results in each of its other businesses, including Investment Banking, Equities, Global Wealth Management and Asset Management – subject to market conditions through the end of the year.

Valuation of Subprime Exposures

In determining the fair value of the Firm's ABS CDO-related exposures – which represent the most senior tranches of the capital structure of subprime ABS CDOs – Morgan Stanley took into consideration observable data for relevant benchmark instruments in synthetic subprime markets. Deterioration of value in the benchmark instruments as well as the market developments referred to earlier have led to significant declines in the estimates of fair value. These declines reflect increases in implied cumulative losses across this portfolio. These loss levels are consistent with the cumulative losses implied by ABX Indices in the range between 11-19 percent. At a severity rate of 50 percent, these levels of cumulative loss imply defaults in the range of 40-50 percent of outstanding mortgages for 2005 and 2006 vintages.

In calculating the fair value of the Firm's U.S. subprime mortgage related exposures – including loans, total rate-of-return swaps, ABS bonds (including subprime residuals) and ABS CDS – Morgan Stanley took into consideration observable transactions, the continued deterioration in market conditions, as reflected by the sharp decline in the ABX Indices, and other market developments, including updated cumulative loss data. The fair value of the ABS Bonds declined significantly, which was driven by increases in implied cumulative loss rates applied to subprime residuals at levels consistent with those implied by current market indicators.

It is expected that market conditions will continue to evolve, and that the fair value of these exposures will frequently change and could further deteriorate. Given these anticipated fluctuations, Morgan Stanley does not intend to update this information until it announces its fourth quarter 2007 earnings in December 2007. Investors also should not expect the Company to provide information about the results of future quarters in advance of scheduled quarterly earnings announcement dates.

Notes:

- (1) Net Exposure is defined as potential loss to the Firm in an event of 100% default, assuming zero recovery. Positive amounts indicate potential loss (long position) in a default scenario. Negative amounts indicate potential gain (short position) in a default scenario.
- (2) In determining the fair value of the Firm's ABS CDO-related exposures – which represent the most senior tranches of the capital structure of subprime ABS CDOs – Morgan Stanley took into consideration observable data for relevant benchmark instruments in synthetic sub prime markets. Deterioration of value in the benchmark instruments as well as the market developments referred to above have led to significant declines in the estimates of fair value. These declines reflect increase in implied losses across this portfolio. These implied loss levels are consistent with the losses in the range between 11% - 19% implied by the ABX indices. These cumulative loss levels, at a severity rate of 50%, imply defaults in the range of 40 - 50% for 2005 and 2006 outstanding mortgages.

- (3) In calculating the fair value of the Firm's U.S. sub-prime mortgage related exposures – including loans, total rate-of-return swaps, ABS bonds (including subprime residuals) and ABS CDS – Morgan Stanley took into consideration observable transactions, the continued deterioration in market data, as reflected by the sharp decline in the ABX indices, and other market developments, including updated cumulative loss data. The fair value of the ABS Bonds declined significantly, which were driven by increases in implied cumulative losses for subprime residuals to levels equivalent to those now seen in the market.
